THRANE & THRANE RECEIVES PMA CERTIFICATION FOR NEW SWIFTBROADBAND SOLUTION

Aero-SB Lite becomes the lightest and most compact SwiftBroadband solution on the market to receive PMA

On July 7, 2009 Thrane & Thrane received Parts Manufacturer Approval (PMA) for its latest SwiftBroadband solution, Aero-SB Lite. The cost-effective Aero-SB Lite is the lightest, most compact SwiftBroadband solution on the market to be awarded PMA certification by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

Commenting on the PMA certification, Andy Beers, Director for Aeronautical Sales North America, Thrane & Thrane said: "Receiving PMA certification is a key milestone for any aeronautical product and we are delighted to have gained the approval for Aero-SB Lite. The compact and lightweight SwiftBroadband solution offers users a broad range of cost-effective Voice and Data services, providing true office-in-the-sky technology."

The cutting-edge Aero-SB Lite enables cost effective broadband suitable for the widest range of aircraft possible. Its full SwiftBroadband data functionality provides the ultimate in quality of service and lower costs in terms of initial investment and operation.

Furthermore, by fully harnessing the power of the internet, email, VPN, fax and telephony in one compact and lightweight package, Aero-SB Lite exceeds the ongoing requirement to provide a true office in the sky. The system offers a wealth of functionality including built in WiFi capability and VoiP technology, where users can utilize their own compatible handsets or WiFi enabled PDA devices. Additionally, the data and voice functionality of Aero-SB Lite can be used simultaneously ensuring total flexibility for the end user.
